

"The Most Widely Quoted Southern Newspaper."

1879. The ATLANTA DAILY CONSTITUTION. We have few pretensions to make for this paper. It is not a newspaper of the first rank, but it is the most complete daily journal published in the south. It is the verdict of our readers, and the verdict of the most critical of our exchanges, some of whose opinions we take pleasure in presenting below.

The managers will be pardoned for briefly alluding to some of the features which have given THE CONSTITUTION prominence among southern papers.

I. It prints all the news, both by mail and telegraph.

II. Its telegraphic service is fuller than that of any other Georgia paper. Its special dispatches pack it upon a footing so far as the news is concerned, with the metropolitan journals.

III. Its compilation of the news by mail is the freshest of the best, comprising everything of interest in the current newspaper literature of the south. Its editorial department is full, bright and vigorous, and its paragraphs and opinions are more widely quoted than those of any southern journal. It discusses all questions of public interest, and touches upon all current topics.

V. "Bill App," the most genial of humorists, will contribute to its columns. "Old Sir" and "Uncle Remus" will work in their special style, and will furnish fun both in prose and verse.

VI. It is a complete news, family and agricultural journal. It contains the most complete and accurate column containing every item of interest in the domain of politics, literature and science.

VII. In addition to these, full reports of the general assembly will be published, and no pains will be spared to keep the paper up to its present standard.

What the Critics Say.

The best paper in the south.—Kokuk Constitution.

The best paper in the south.—Burlington Hawkeye.

One of the most desirable journals in the country.—Detroit Free Press.

The best and most interesting paper in the south.—Baltimore Evening Post.

There is no better newspaper in the southern states.—Charlotte Observer.

Readily accepted toward the position of a metropolitan journal.—Savannah Times.

It is one of the brightest, most interesting, and most valuable of the southern journals.—Brooklyn Times.

Not content with being the best newspaper in the south, it is determined to be the best looking also.—Philadelphia Times.

Able, efficient and newsworthy, in its new dress it is attractive in form as it has heretofore been in matter.—New Orleans Times.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION with its new colors, is the new handloom, as it has long been the best, now in the south.—New York Star.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION has been making progress the last few years, and is now fairly taking a place among the first-class newspapers of the south.—Springfield Republican.

To say that THE CONSTITUTION is one of the brightest, newest journals of the country, a praise which the whole country would accord, is to say that it is a self-evident fact apparent to all.—Washington Post.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 3, 1879.

The chance of the passage of any bill on the private calendar of the house is now put down at one in fifty. The path is blocked by the William and Mary college bill, which stands at the head of the calendar and which is sure to lead to a warm but profitless discussion whenever it is reached.

This approach of resumption did not bring prosperity to all even in the city where it was to take place. For there were sixty-one failures in New York city last month, in which the liabilities amounted to $1,822,284, and the assets to $1,014,794—an increase of five failures over the number in November, and of $300,000 in liabilities. Mr. Sherman has not made us all rich and happy.

MR. SHERMAN is sanguine and boastful. He expects to find all the remaining six percent this year. He is pushing things, and he says the next four weeks will disclose either success or failure in his expectations in the respect. In this connection the singular fact is stated that the bonds heretofore called about fifteen millions in amount have never been presented for payment, the holders preferring to lose the interest on their money than to make a sudden reinvestment of it.

JOHN SHERMAN is now dictator. At the head of a tremendous band of issue, holding control of all the other banks of issue in the country, he is possessed of more real power to-day than perhaps any American ruler ever had. Lincoln not excepted. This fact alone shows how overshadowing the currency question will be, at least until 1880. It is believed that, on the resumption of Congress, the democrats of congress will take steps to bring the party into force with a clearly-defined financial platform, the substitution of treasury notes for national bank notes becoming doubtless the chief plank. This would have been done before the holiday recess but for the reason that it was thought best to urge no financial legislation until Sherman's plan of resumption went into effect.

The republican party is preparing to claim the glory of resumption as its own peculiar property, and it is even given out that Mr. Hayes will officially file the claim in a special congratulatory message to congress. "But," says the Washington Post, "for economic appropriations set on foot and carried into effect by the democrats against strong radical opposition; but for numerous wise and beneficial measures set on foot by Democrats; but for the democratic prostration of radical schemes; and for the treasury, John Sherman could not now make even an effort at resumption. In spite of this, however, the radical party may be expected to look upon the whole affair as a party measure and to claim its success as a legitimate bit of party capital. This will not do. The radical party being in complete possession of the executive branch of the government has been enabled to direct the processes, but the work has been done, as the burden has been borne, by the people."

A Reform That is Greatly Needed.

Public sentiment is beginning to wake up to the necessity of a grand change in the business of our country. We have outgrown the old way of legislation. At the outset of the "Republican" career congress could dispose of all the minor and private bills that came up, and in a republic of forty-old millions it is simply absurd to expect the sole national body to consider any but matters of public import. And yet, to-day, out of nearly six thousand pending bills, not over two hundred relate to the business of the public. The balance are of personal or private nature—bills for "relief," for pensions, for changes in the names of vessels, for modifications of the charters of horse railway companies in Washington, for extension of patents, for immemorial jobs of local nature, including a world of minor claims for damages caused by the army during the late war. These bills take up the time not only of congress, but of the individual member. The latter pursues these trivial bills as a part of his campaign for re-election. While he slaves to please a constituent, a city or a section by pushing through a private or local bill, he forgets questions of revenue or currency, administrative efficiency and interstate relations—his proper and only valuable work. He sees only his selfish and short-sighted constituents. The result is a general scramble for national favors, and a hurried disposition of all of general interest.

Education and the Solid South.

Yesterday we republished from the New York Tribune an interview with "a resident of Georgia who holds a prominent position in that (this) state," in which interview the anonymous party elaborates the idea that free schools are the only means of breaking up the "solid south," and this because the alleged "bourgeois government" and the alleged "aristocratic government" are ripe for a new rebellion against the idea that in a government like this there should be no distinction of class or race. Such deliverances would sink into the silliest bore were it not that the people and press of the north seize upon these bald assertions and, without reference to facts, prejudice and misjudge the true course of affairs in the south and the real temper of our people upon such subjects as education, race improvement and social order.

The point of the interview referred to is that general free education of the masses in the south would lead to the re-establishment of the republican party in this section. By no appeal to facts, however, is this assertion sought to be supported, and we fail to find a reason why such a result should issue from the general education of the people. Education of the masses has certainly not brought about such a result in any of the states of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Ohio and Indiana; why should it do otherwise in the case of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas? If education is the life-preserving influence upon the republican party, that party, during its eighteen years lease of unlimited power in this country, has sadly neglected the ordinary rules of health and invited its own dissolution by not establishing universal education with the hundreds of millions that it has criminally diverted to the enrichment of rings and monopolies.

Minority Representation.

A novel bill will be introduced in the house after the holiday recess, having for its object the attainment of what its advocates call "equitable representation." After the apportionment of 1880, and upon every subsequent apportionment, the proposed law would require each state legislature to erect the congressional districts as follows: A state entitled to only one representative to be one district. A state entitled to two representatives to be divided into two districts. A state entitled to three representatives to be divided into three districts. A state entitled to four representatives to be divided into four districts. A state entitled to five representatives to be divided into five districts. And so on of states entitled to more than five representatives; each district to contain as nearly as practicable, either five representatives or three representatives. The aim is that the number of representatives to be chosen in every district shall be an odd number, and that this odd number be either three or five, as the local legislature may prefer, in all cases where the formation of either three-member or five-member districts is possible. Thus, in a state entitled to fifteen representatives, it would be optional with the legislature to erect either three five-member districts or five three-member districts. Georgia would, by her present representation be maintained, be divided into three three-member districts; if the next census gives her an additional member, she would be divided into two five-member districts.

The bill then provides that in five-member districts, every elector may vote for one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five, twenty-six, twenty-seven, twenty-eight, twenty-nine, thirty, thirty-one, thirty-two,
